NSL CHOOSE P50!!

NSL, formerly known as NCP, was formed in Spring 2007 by the demerger of NCP into two separate businesses. It provides parking services, bus and coach operations, city center CCTV monitoring, back office processing, streetscape consultancy and debt recovery.

In 2017 NSL was acquired by Marston Holdings to form the largest civil enforcement and judicial services group, with around 200 workplaces and 6500 workers spread across the whole country.

Marston's / NSL were first drawn to the P50 as an extinguisher solution because of the environmental and financial benefits. Mark Tucker who is the Head of Health, Safety and Environment explains why the P50 made so much sense, "the savings and obvious environmental benefits caught our eye initially but when we looked into the P50 in more detail we were mostly impressed by the excellent firefighting capabilities. The foam unit covers all eventualities that could be encountered in our workplaces. The P50's also remove any potential confusion or delay in deciding which extinguisher to use because the one extinguisher replaces two in most scenarios!"

In addition to the savings made in the reduction of the physical number of extinguishers required in each premise, NSL were attracted to the ease of maintenance. Because the P50 is easily serviced in-house negating the requirement to use third party inspection engineers, there is a substantial cost saving and less of a security issue.

Mark was also impressed with Eco Fires Safety's installation and deployment across their operations. "The EFS team did a great job in accommodating our roll out requirements. Their professionalism and flexibility enabled us to install the P50's across our portfolio on a phased basis, replacing traditional extinguishers as they neared the end of their lives. EFS are a real asset as a business partner and we look forward to working with them further in the future!"
